BOYS ARRESTED FOR SNOWBALLING

Burgess Threatens to Fine or Imprison them. Youngsters Can't See just where the Fun of Living Comes in. A Warning.

"Just what fun is there in being a boy anyhow", is the question ten High School youths and all their friends are asking to-day. A couple of winters ago the austere borough fathers said they must not coast on town streets. Friday afternoon Chief of Police Emmons took charge of a number of happy boys for engaging in the joyous sport of snowballing. This morning they were given a hearing before Burgess Raymond who told them they must either spend twenty four hours in the lock-up or pay fines of $1.00 and costs of $2.50 each.

It all came about in this way. Burgess Raymond claims that numerous complaints have been made by persons, either devoid of memory of childhood days or peeved by some personal "injury", concerning the promiscuous snowballing that followed the recent falls of the beautiful. So insistent came these demands for action that the burgess felt something should be done. One little girl was struck in the eye, a man claims the presence of one small black and blue mark on his side, and property owners mourn the loss of two or three window panes—value 10 or 15 cents each—as the result of the sport.

Steps had to be taken, thought the burgess, to stop the menace to life, limb and property. Officer Emmons was detailed on the case and he laid in wait Friday afternoon for the High School boys, happy in their freedom after a week's study and anxious to work off a little surplus joy. There they came, snowballs in hand, and with unerring aim throwing the soft masses of snow against their fellow pupils. Ten guilty ones were spotted and marched to the burgess' office. Mr. Raymond decided to postpone the hearing until this morning when the following appeared:

Russell Stouffer, Lester Stouffer, Glen Sheely, Mahlon Hartley, Robert Mishler, Herbert Oyler, Theodore Horner, John Settle, Isadore Lestz and Raymond Lentz.

Their fun stopped, and the stern majesty of the law staring them in the face, the youths awaited their fate.

"You boys can either go to the lock-up until Sunday morning or pay fine, and costs of $3.50 each", came the verdict from the town's chief official.

Immediately their faces became crest-fallen and there may have been the sign of a tear or two but the burgess relented and told them they could all go if they would promise never, never again to throw a snowball within the borough limits. He then delivered a lecture to the youngsters and they departed with instructions to tell all their friends that if there were any further offenses actual fines would follow.

Just what fun is there in being a boy anyhow?

SOCIETY PROGRAM

High School Hears Address and Enjoys Farce Comedy.

The Clover-Leaf Society of the Gettysburg High School rendered the last program of the school year Friday afternoon Miss Anna Oppenlander, a Junior Chautauqua worker, spoke of the work of the schools and of the play grounds. The society paper was read by Ralph Rebert, Lillian Kitzmiller recited, a violin duet was played by Margaret Minter and William Zincand and the school orchestra rendered several selections. The program was concluded by a farce comedy "The Old Country Store" in which twenty-five took part. The store had but one counter, a stove and a few chairs, many yarns were told and arguments arose. Finally the village constable took the store in charge and had auction. A large audience enjoyed the program.

DENIES REPORTS

Nothing to Hide at the York Hospital Says Farquhar.

Hon. A. B. Farquhar, president of the York hospital and dispensary, in an article which he furnished to the York County Medical Society and which is printed in the Medical Bulletin, takes occasion to defend the hospital against what he terms criminal disloyalty to the institution on the part of those who have been making attacks on it. He declares that disloyal physicians have been trying to injure state aid and the "misguided" members of the Women's club are scarcely less excusable since they refused to assist the board of managers in correcting alleged abuses at the hospital.

Mr. Farquhar denies emphatically that there ever has been and is now, anything about the hospital to conceal of which the board of directors or himself have any knowledge, and that the attacks made, of which the recent investigation was the culmination, were the most unjustifiable and even criminal for the reason that they injured an institution which is doing a great amount of good and which it is absolutely necessary for the city to support to the fullest extent.

Mr. Farquhar has been president eighteen years, and has devoted a great deal of his attention to the welfare of the hospital.

SNOW TAKES DEER TO COUNTY FARMS

Hungry Animals Visit Farms in Search of Food. Reports Continue of Dogs Chasing the Deer. Expect to Take Precautions.

Deer are venturing from the mountain in large numbers these days to get food. The snow—in many places three feet deep—has hidden much of their customary provender and they are now going to the low lands, where they eat the buds on trees and the moss along the banks of the streams or obtain food from the yards about the farm houses.

A dozen with two big bucks among them, were seen in the meadow opposite the D. E. Thomas residence, at Glen Furney, Wednesday. They ate some of the grass there and some of the buds from trees along the stream that flows through the meadow. This has, for years, been a favorite feeding place for deer.

Dogs in that vicinity hunt deer with much regularity. They leave their homes early in the morning and go to the mountain in pursuit of the deer. Some of the residents are indignant over this and are using their guns on the curs. Only a few days ago two dogs were shot while running deer and a number have been driven away from the chase.

One of these dogs pursued a big buck that had difficulty in making its escape. During the last open season a hunter had shot off about eight inches of a hind leg of this deer and its speed was reduced by this handicap.

Blood marks on the slightly eroded snow showed where the shortened leg was cut by the snow but it is believed it escaped the dog.

The people of that section are giving Game Warden Overcash the needed help and it is probable that every dog that chases deer will be killed during the next few weeks.

GEO. VANDERBILT PASSES AWAY

Member of Noted Family Dies in Washington.

LIVED IN PRINCELY STATE

Owner of Biltmore, One of Largest Estates in America, Succumbs to Operation.

Washington, March 7.—George W. Vanderbilt, of New York, died here. He submitted to an operation for appendicitis several days ago. His wife and one daughter, Miss Cornelia, survive him.

George Washington Vanderbilt, multi-millionaire, philanthropist, art collector and owner of Biltmore, the largest country estate in America, was born at New Dorp, Staten Island, New York, Nov. 14, 1862. He was the third son of William Henry and Maria Louise (Kissam) and the brother of William K. Vanderbilt and Frederick William Vanderbilt, and the uncle of the Duchess of Marlborough.

Mr. Vanderbilt's tastes were entirely different from his brothers. He cared nothing for any kind of sport, but was literary and artistic to a degree. From 1888 to 1898 he spent the greater part of his time in traveling in Japan, India and nearly every portion of the civilized globe.

Mr. Vanderbilt invested large sums in curios wherever he went. It is said that the aggregate value of his collection was $1,000,000. He had collections of etchings, old prints, rare books, paintings and statuary, china and pottery, old tapestries and countless odds and ends of vases, arms and armor, coins, musical instruments, jewels, etc.

One bit of tapestry that he owned is said to have been insured for $25,000. Mr. Vanderbilt's gifts to charity were many and varied. Among others he presented to the Teachers' College its site on Morningside Heights, New York; built and equipped the Thirteenth street branch of the New York Public Library, and gave the American Society of Fine Arts its room in their building known as the Vanderbilt gallery.

About 1892 Mr. Vanderbilt purchased 30,000 acres of land in western North Carolina, near Asheville, to which he subsequently added until he possessed 100,000 acres, which he named Biltmore. Much of the ground was bought for less than $50 an acre, and $200,000 was spent in mapping and laying out the grounds, through which two rivers flow. The beautiful Swannanoa cuts off one corner, while the French Broad traverses the estate for ten miles. In one direction Mr. Vanderbilt's ownership extended for twenty miles.

The architect, the landscape gardener and the forester received "free swing" to carry out their ideas and plans on a larger scale than ever before attempted in this country. Some idea of the extent of these operations may be had from the fact that, for three years 200 men were steadily engaged in bringing the grounds to the perfection exacted by the landscape gardener, Frederick Law Olmstead, who laid out most of Central Park and the grounds of the World's Fair at Chicago, and that from ten to 150 stone cutters, masons and carpenters were at work raising the stately mansion. Then there were the forestry operations under the direction of Gifford Pinchot, the brick and tile factory and other industries, which gave employment to more than 100 men.

The magnificent house was constructed mainly of Indiana granite, finished with glazed brick. It was begun in 1890 and took five years to build. The cost was said to be $3,500,000. The principal apartments are in the front, at each end of which rise the towers, five stories high. There are perhaps 200 rooms in the house. If a visitor started at one end of the building and tried to reach the other end, he would likely get lost. The ballroom is 60 feet wide and 80 feet long, containing a $20,000 organ.

ELOPERS ARRESTED; MAY BE WHITE SLAVERY

Married Man is Caught With 17-Year-Old Girl.

Hagerstown, Md., March 7.—James H. Welker, thirty years old, a trolley motorman of this city, who eloped on Jan. 26 with a pretty seventeen-year-old Ethel E. Leatherman, the daughter of John Leatherman, a wealthy farmer, of Myersville, leaving behind a wife and three children, were apprehended in Roanoke, Va.

Sheriff King will leave for Roanoke and bring the runaways home. No charge has been preferred against Miss Leatherman. Welker was indicted by the February grand jury for deserting his wife and children.

It is thought the federal authorities will ask for Welker's arrest upon a charge of white slavery. Miss Leatherman's father came to Hagerstown and informed State's Attorney Wolfinger that his daughter had just withdrawn from the Myersville Savings bank money she had on deposit there through the National Clay bank, of Roanoke. State's Attorney Wolfinger immediately wired the Roanoke authorities to arrest the couple.

GIRL, 12, TELLS OF ATTACK

Man 60 Years Old Held on Charge of Assault.

Wilmington, Del., March 7.—A frail little girl of twelve years, weeping bitterly as she took the stand in court, related a tale of an attack by an aged man.

She related to the court how the man attempted to assault her at a local park, on the outskirts of the city. As a result of the evidence Patrick Cassidy was convicted of assault.

The girl is Mary Hill. She appeared in court with her mother, Mrs. Dorothy Hill, and sobbed softly on her mother's lap after she had testified. A park guard testified that Cassidy had moved other children who were at play in parks of the city, and a policeman testified that a mother had asked the aid of the police to keep Cassidy away from her child. Sentence on Cassidy was suspended. He is sixty years old.

TOLL REPEAL BILL GOES TO HOUSE

Committee Acts Quickly on the President's Request.

EXPECT EARLY PASSAGE

Senator Poindexter Wants Mr. Wilson to Explain Reference to Matters of "Even Greater Delicacy."

Washington, March 7.—The fight over the repeal of that section of the Panama canal act which exempts American coastwise shipping from the payment of tolls, began in both houses of congress.

The house committee on interstate and foreign commerce responded quickly to President Wilson's plea for a repeal of this provision by ordering a favorable report on the Sims bill providing for the repeal, and the report was later presented to the house.

In the senate, where the hardest fight is expected, opposition to the president's course appeared in the form of a resolution introduced by Senator Poindexter, Progressive, calling on President Wilson to explain what matters of "even greater delicacy and nearer consequence" he referred to in his address to congress as depending on the repeal of the Panama tolls exemption.

The resolution, with a similar one by Senator Jones, Republican, of Washington, went over for a day, under the rules.

At the White House the president, when questioned about that feature of his address, explained that he meant to say that it was awkward to deal with foreign nations which took the position that the United States did not live up to its treaty obligations. That phrase of the address was widely discussed in official and congressional circles and many constructions were applied to it.

In the house, the Republican leader, Representative Mann, declared that, after reading London dispatches giving the British view of the president's Panama tolls address, he understood that the president meant by "other matters of even greater delicacy and nearer consequence," Mann read from a London dispatch headed "Thinks United States Feels Japan."

"After reading that dispatch," he said, "I can appreciate the significance of the last remark of the president in his message calling for protection of this government from a war with Japan and for this government to act at the behest of Europe. I do not court, but I am not afraid of war with Japan, or with any one else, and I would not yield what I believe to be right through fear, whatever else I might do."

The report of the Sims bill was ordered by a vote of 14 to 3. Four members of the committee were absent and sought to have their votes recorded, but permission to do this was refused. Had it been granted the vote would have been 17 to 4.

ROB PAYMASTER OF $10,000

Two Hold-Up Men Dash Into St. Louis Shoe Factory; Get Away With Cash.

St. Louis, Mo., March 7.—The paymaster of the Brown Shoe company was robbed of $10,000 at a factory of the company.

The robbery was committed by two men, who jumped from an automobile, ran into the factory and held up the paymaster.

After fleeing in the automobile to the McKinley bridge at the foot of Salisbury street, the highwaymen attempted to hold up the watchman at the bridge. When he resisted they left the automobile, fled to Broadway and boarded a northbound Broadway street car.

Police from every down town district were rushed to the car lines, and all cars, both north and southbound, were searched for the thieves, but they made a clean getaway.

Rats Attack Two Boys.

Newark, Ohio, March 7.—George Glauminger and C. E. Broome, two eight-year-old boys, were severely bitten by rats in a barn here. The Glauminger boy reached his hand into a manger. A rat snapped at his hand, severing an artery. When the boys tried to kill the rat it was joined by others. The boys eventually were compelled to flee into deep snow, where the animals could not follow them.

FEARED KNIFE: KILLS SELF

Worrying Over Intended Operation, Woman Takes Gas.

Philadelphia, March 7.—Osborn Gordon was called from his work in a restaurant at Broad and Cumberland streets to find that the body of his wife was being carted from place to place, none being willing to take it in. Mrs. Evelyn Gordon, twenty-eight years old, committed suicide by inhaling illuminating gas in her room at a boarding house, 2145 North Thirteenth street. She had made preparations to undergo a surgical operation at the Woman's Homeopathic hospital, but the strain of ill health and the dread of the operation produced a state of mind which it is believed was responsible for her suicide.

Mrs. Mary Tunstall, the landlady, was alone in the house when the odor of gas reached the kitchen. She ran to Mrs. Gordon's room, but found the door locked.

She then called in Policeman Dougherty, who forced Mrs. Gordon's door and found her dead, with the tube of a gas stove between her teeth. The body was sent to the Woman's Homeopathic hospital, and then back to the boarding house, but they refused to take it in. The body was finally taken to an undertaker's shop, from where it will be buried.

WIFE WHO WENT TOWARD WITH HUSBAND DIES

Shoveling Snow is Fatal to Heroine of 1861.

Lebanon, Pa., March 7.—Mrs. Amanda Woomer, seventy-five years old, died at her home at Myerstown from the effects of a ruptured blood vessel received while shoveling snow at her home.

Mrs. Woomer insisted upon living alone and doing her own work. Her only companion for several years was a small dog.

Just before the Civil War she married John Ritzshaw, and when he enlisted she refused to leave him and accompanied him on several battlefields, where she is accredited with deeds of heroism and mercy.

Her husband was killed in battle, and upon her return home she married Orlando Woomer, who died three years ago. Mrs. Woomer alleged that he treated her so badly that she ordered her own grave dug a year ago, to make sure that a brick wall would separate her body from his.

Her will also provides that none of her estate, valued at several thousand dollars, shall go to any church, but to several orphanages.

WOMEN INVADE PRIZE RING

Millie Carpenter Lands Knockout on Millie Warner in Fourth Round.

Paris, March 7.—About 400 jockeys and stable lads, mostly English, assembled at Chantilly to see two young Frenchwomen, Millie M. Carpenter, twenty years of age, and Millie Warner, slightly her senior, box to decide the world's female boxing championship.

The two women went at each other with furious energy. Millie Warner forced the pace, and within five minutes after the match had started her hair was in a very disorderly condition.

The match was intended to last six rounds, but in the fourth round Millie Warner, after a knockout blow, was counted out. When she retired from the ring she had a black eye and a bruise on the nose.

Starved Hogs Kill Others.

Philadelphia, March 7.—Railroad men in the West Philadelphia yards of the Pennsylvania railroad found that out of 700 hogs on a freight train thirty-three were dead and many others were dying, as a result of the stronger ones killing and then eating the weaker ones. The train was from the west and was detained at Lancaster on account of the storm. The hogs were starved.

Boy Sandbagged In Store.

THE HUTCHINSON FAMILY

Famous Old-Time Singers

Where is there an American home that has not felt the heart touch of the song "Dream Faces", written by John William Hutchinson, one of a family of twenty children, born at Milford, Mass. The Hutchinson boys, tall and sturdy, were the popular concert singers of their time, but sang much in the cause of temperance and abolition, and during the war sang for the soldiers. They made a successful tour in England and later founded the town of Hutchinson, Minnesota, in which they narrowly escaped massacre and were rescued by General Sibley. The author of "Dream Faces" lived to a ripe old age and the memory of the famous Hutchinson family will always be heartily associated with "Sweet Dreamland Faces".

The popular song alluded to is included in "Heart Songs"—which, indeed, has left nothing out that has pleased the people for the past hundred years. This volume is being almost given away by this paper to its readers—and thousands are grateful for the opportunity. The coupon in today's issue explains terms.

Dancing Once Part of Worship.

We read in the "Book of the Dead," which contains the papyrus of Egypt's most ancient seers and scholars, that dancing was a part of Egyptian worship. In fact, the hieroglyphics themselves, denoting adoration, triumph after battle, gloom at the death of a monarch or a high priest, were often figures of men or women in dancing postures.

TOURING BALL TEAMS RETURN

World Girdling Giants and White Sox Reach New York.

TRIP WAS A SUCCESS

McGraw Says France and Japan Have Gone Mad Over Base Ball--Profits About $100,000.

New York, March 7.--The world-girdling American base ball players came home in a snow storm. While harbor craft tooted and envoys from the Federal league figuratively waved enticing contracts, the Giant-White Sox combination drew into Quarantine.

The Federal league representatives were unable to obtain passes to board the Lusitania to greet the travelers down the bay. Organized base ball was more fortunate in having obtained revenue cutter passes in advance, and a delegation was able to board the ship before she came up to her pier.

Nearly every player received some sort of offer from the Federals by the wireless route. None of them, however, announced any intention of signing. Dick Egan, the Cincinnati shortstop, recently sold to Brooklyn, signed up with Ebbetts. "Tris" Speaker said he would sign up with the Bostonians, and Doolan made the same promise to Baker, of Philadelphia.

Ben Johnson, of the American league, was one of the first to greet John McGraw and Charles Comiskey on board the Lusitania. Mr. Comiskey was looking well, considering the long siege of illness he had abroad. He and McGraw were enthusiastic over the reception accorded the teams, particularly at the way they were received in Japan and England. They said they regretted keenly not having been able to play in Paris.

The ferryboat Niagara, chartered for the occasion and laden with fans, steamed down the bay to greet the tourists. Men and boys on board, all dressed in base ball uniforms, lined the rails and waved flags as the band played. A light snow was still falling as the Lusitania nosed her way up the river. The ball players stood at the rails cheering wildly in response to the welcome, and one of their number unfurled a huge American flag. In a final concert on the liner Thursday night Herman Shafer sang German songs and Mike Donlin displayed his talents as an entertainer.

"The trip was a success in every way," said Manager McGraw, of the Giants. "It even exceeded our expectations in a financial way. The receipts for the game in London alone were over $11,000, and if we played in Paris we would have gotten over $25,000 there. France has certainly gone mad on base ball."

"The people of Japan are real base ball fans. Those Japs know the game as well as we do, and when it comes to rooting they certainly have the edge on America. Australia is going to take up the game. While we were over there several of us coached teams that were formed as a result of our visit."

More than seventy games were played during the trip, and the list would have been larger but for rain at Paris, Rome and several cities in China and Japan. Notwithstanding these setbacks the financial returns were far in excess of expectations, and the profits are estimated at nearly $100,000.

TRAIN ROBBER ELUDES POSSE

Escapes With Registered Mail From Southern Railway Express.

Columbia, S. C., March 7.--The authorities redoubled their efforts to capture the bandit who held up and robbed the mail car of Southern railway train No. 11, from Charleston to Columbia, just as the train reached the latter place.

Aided by the Columbia police, special officers of the railroad company are scouring the country for the robber, but so far no trace of his has been found.

Boarding the train just as it reached the city limits, the robber, flourishing a revolver, ordered Mail Clerk Thomas to stand with his face to the wall, and after quickly securing several sacks of registered mail, jumped off the train and made off some time before the train reached the Columbia station.

Until the record of the Charleston postoffice can be examined it will be impossible to ascertain the value of the packages taken.

Employee Kills Woman.

New York, March 7.--Mrs. Mabel Garcia, a well-to-do Cuban and owner of a cigar factory, was shot and killed in her home in Park avenue by Victor Reynolds, a young employee of hers, whose attentions she had rejected. Reynolds then committed suicide. The crime was committed in the presence of Mrs. Garcia's five children.

Priest Killed In Subway.

New York, March 7.--Rev. Alexis Novak, a Catholic priest, visiting here from Taylor, Pa., died in a hospital to which he had been removed after falling between two cars from a subway platform at Times Square. The police were unable to find any witnesses to tell how the accident occurred.

AGED MAN ADMITS MURDER IN 1885

Minister Says He Confessed Killing His Wife.

Erie, Pa., March 7.--Rev. John B. Cook, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church at Girard, Pa., notified District Attorney J. O. Wait that John Turner, eighty-three years old, had confessed to him that he murdered his wife at Linesville, Pa., in 1885.

According to the story told the district attorney, Turner, who has been very ill, summoned Mr. Cook to his home and told him that while the Turners lived at Linesville, he became angry at his wife and hit her with a club. He was arrested and tried for the crime, but was acquitted by the testimony of members of the family. The jury held that Mrs. Turner had died as the result of a fall. The trial, according to Turner's story, took place at Meadville, Pa. The authorities there were notified of the alleged confession.

FOUR BOYS ARRESTED

Charged With Robbing Many Stores In vicinity of Catasauqua.

Catasauqua, Pa., March 7.--On a charge of having robbed many stores in Catasauqua and its vicinity of plunder worth several hundred dollars, four boys, from twelve to fifteen years old, Byron Smith, Paul Kosman, Alfred Rockel and "Muggs" Vandegrift, were arrested. Smith, the alleged ring leader, was caught first and he implicated the others.

They would go into a store and buy something for which they knew the clerk would have to go to the cellar, and then help themselves, it is charged. Vandegrift was arrested in school. He had a revolver and tried to use it. Anthony O'Donnell was arrested for selling cigarettes to them. The thefts were planned chiefly to get tobacco, it is said.

FIND $23,000 ON VAGRANT

Hump on Back Is Tin Box Holding Fortune--Homeless 20 Years.

San Francisco, March 7.--For over twenty years William Kahler, seventy years old, has been a beggar, eating food taken from refuse cans and sleeping wherever he could find shelter.

Friday night was cool, and a hard-hearted policeman arrested Kahler to give him shelter. In searching Kahler it was found that what was supposed to be a hump on his back was a tin box, which was packed with gold coin and paper money. Various false pockets in his clothes were emptied of additional money. The total was found to be $23,000.

BUYING OFF A REBEL

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1914, by Associated Literary Press.

John Noyes, farmer, had lived to be forty-five years old without finding much to kick at. He had a good wife, good health, and he made a profit every year.

Sometimes when election came around he drove to the polls and voted, and sometimes he didn't. He had no interest in politics. He belonged to a certain party because his father and grandfather had. If his party won out all right; if it lost all right. It was nothing to the farmer's gain either way.

Take it all in all, John Noyes was as content as any man in America, and when he happened to think of it he said to his wife:

"I guess it's a pretty good country to live in."

And they went right along believing that and wondering why other folks kicked until one fatal night when a tin peddler was taken in as a guest. The peddler was a man of gab outside of the gab he had to use in his business. He was also a politician, or thought he was. He likewise boasted that he was a Socialist of the deepest dye, and he carried with him and handed out to whoever would take them a stock of pamphlets entitled:

"Are You a Slave?" "Is Freedom a Myth?" "Did Our Grandfathers Die in Vain?" "Will You Tamely Submit to the Yoke?"

That evening the peddler told John Noyes and his wife some things to make them gasp, and he had the documents to back up what he said.

This was a government composed of a few rich men, and they were sworn not to let the poor man get a fair living.

All the judges were bought and sold. The great burden of taxation was borne by the poor.

The rich were entirely to blame for the high cost of living.

Let a rich man steal $100,000 and the judge let him off with a mild reprimand and divided the plunder with him.

Let a poor man steal a frostbitten potato for his starving children and he was sent to prison for thirty years.

There was much more of the stuff, and when the farmer and his wife had read and heard they were agast.

The farmer had been placid and content for long years. He had had little to worry him, and no one could remember when he had been seen to lose his temper. Such a man goes all to pieces when the change comes. He slept very little that night, and next morning he did not go to work. He sat down to read those pamphlets through and through. He got worked up as he read. He exclaimed: he swore; he felt blood-thirsty; he pounded with his fist.

"I wouldn't get all hot up over it," said the wife as he finally got up and stamped around.

"But them durned rich men, Martha!"

"I know, but mebbe they can't help it."

"And them blamed tyrants!"

"They haven't tried to boss us any."

"And them judges!"

"But we don't have any lawsuits."

"I tell you, Martha, the people are being driven to desperation, and the cry for blood will soon be heard all over the land!"

"Well, we'll stay home and mind our business."

Once started on the wrongs of the people, John Noyes was a fanatic. He could talk of nothing else. He began planning how to right those wrongs. He finally sent a communication to the county paper reciting the wrongs of the people and offering himself as a leader in the movement to redress them. He defied the powers of the United States and went so far as to dare the government to arrest him. The spark needed to fire the country would be struck when a minion of the tyrant at Washington laid hands on him.

After his deft John Noyes loaded his shotgun and retired to a straw stack to wait for recruits and the army of the United States. Neither the recruits nor the army came.

"Better give it up, John, and go back to the cornfield," advised his wife.

"But I'm here to help redress the wrongs."

"But it looks as if the people didn't want them redressed, and that corn needs hoeing mighty bad."

The farmer held out for another day and might have made it a day and a half had not Deacon Travis, who lived a mile away, come over to say:

"Hey, John, I don't want this country all mussed up just now."

"But the tyrants must be wiped out," was the reply.

"I know, but don't wipe 'em just now. Put it off another year."

"I don't see how I can."

"John, you have a bull calf you wanted to trade me for a hog. The hog is worth two of the calf, but if you are a mind to give this thing up we'll call it an even trade."

"I might do it," was the doubtful reply.

"Of course you will," said the wife.

"I hate to, deacon, but seeing it's you, and seeing the people have not rallied to throw off their chains, and since the United States don't attack me, and since that durned tin peddler—"

And the trade was made and the rebellion put down.

An Association Favored.

"Aren't you afraid politics will get into big business over your way?" "I'm hoping it will," replied the man who refuses to be scared; "maybe it will improve politics."

The Lost Chord

Adelaide Anne Proctor, the authoress of "The Lost Chord", was the gifted daughter of the famous and accomplished Bryan Waller Proctor, (Barry Cornwall), of London. Born in 1825, at an early age she had become a poetess of unusual merit. Her principal compositions were chiefly religious hymns, breathing the simplest and completest resignation to the Divine Will, and imploring not gifts and benefactions, but grace to accept and endure whatever her lot might be.

The "Lost Chord", with music by Sir Arthur Sullivan, is to be found on page 294, of "Heart Songs", now being distributed to its readers by this paper. The coupon in to-day's issue explains terms. Thousands have availed themselves of our offer, and it is going fast.
